

X-Midas and XMPy Commercial Training Price List

Effective: January – December 2021

The X-Midas and XMPy training courses are introductory training courses designed to provide a basic overview to creating applications using the X-Midas/ XMPy framework. There is no prerequisite for these courses but some background in software development and a basic familiarity with Linux are expected. For application developers, we recommend the combined X-Midas/XMPy course because the use of Python offers greater flexibility and interoperability with services external to X-Midas.

All pricing assumes a maximum class size of 15 students. The MRSLS facility can host class sizes of up to 15 students.

Client Facility prices listed below do not include travel expenses for the instructor. Pricing for travel to the client facility will be quoted on a case-by-case basis. The client facility must be able to provide an appropriate training room with the ability to project the instructor’s screen.

	BASE PRICES
